

Friedman Must Be Considered Seriously With Leading Lightweights by Showing Against Tendler

LEW TENDLER LUCKY TO GET WIN IN GREAT BOUT WITH FRIEDMAN

Chicagoan Puts Up Impressive Stand Before 17,000 Fans at Phil's Park, With Both Principals Rocked at Different Times

By ROBERT W. MAXWELL
Sports Editor Evening Public Ledger

AFTER wading through eight exceedingly tough and strenuous rounds at the Phil's ball park last night, Lew Tendler was lucky to gain a hairline decision over Sailor (Solly) Friedman, of Chicago. The jolly taut was in excellent form, gave the local boy a hard battle and, had he been able to do anything in the earlier rounds, he would have stood out today as the leading lightweight contender. As it was, he pulled a big surprise by his unexpected showing and lost no prestige, even if he did lose the decision. From now on the Chicago boy must be considered seriously when leading lightweights are discussed.

Friedman boxed better than at any time in his career and showed marvelous improvement. He had confidence in himself, was not afraid to mix it up with his opponent and landed many hard blows. Had he been a trifle faster with his right hand he might have inflicted a lot of punishment on Tendler before the final bell.

The battle was witnessed by a crowd numbering approximately 17,000, and everybody seemed satisfied. This is as it should be, for the scrap was one of the best seen here in many a day. At times it looked as if Tendler were in distress, and at other times Friedman had every appearance of going the voyage. Tendler's generalship and experience stood him in good stead and saved him from a beating.

This was the second fight Tendler had had since last March, when he broke both hands on Friedman's head in Milwaukee. He re-entered the ring on July 4 against Tim Dronney and won that fust. He was supposed to meet Leonard on August 12, and allow us to state he would have stepped into a pile of trouble if last night's form is any criterion. This Friedman battle, however, will do him a lot of good if he ever hooks up with the lightweight champion.

Tendler's judgment of distance was good, his attack on the body could not be improved upon and he had a great defense. It was well that he had, for the Sailor was on him most of the time. In the early rounds Lew stuck to his foe and drove hard lefts and rights to the body. He hurt the Chicagoan, but did not slow him up. Friedman came back for more and always was dangerous.

In the third round it looked as if it were all over. Lew started to use his right jab and rushed Friedman to the ropes. As Solly bounced off Tendler hit him flush on the jaw with his left, and he put every ounce of strength behind it.

FRIEDMAN dropped his hands and stepped for an instant, but instead of falling he tore into Tendler, punching with both hands. The blow was hard enough to knock out an ordinary battler, but it seemed to have no effect on the Sailor.

Law Directs Attack to Sailor's Body

TENDLER took the lead early because he solved his opponent's attack. Instead of boxing and chasing him around the ring, he kept in close and hammered Solly's body with hard lefts and rights. He also landed repeatedly with a left hook to the head and jabbed and hooked with his right. Friedman, however, was not idle while this was going on. Near the end of the second round he scored with two rights to the chin and the local boy was more careful after that.

Solly showed more confidence in the third, but Tendler's jab was working good and he kept up a steady attack on the body. Friedman missed some hard swings in this round. In the fourth Lew stepped in close and whaled away with both hands. The Sailor took a lot of body punishment, but never quit trying. He put over two more rights to the chin bringing cheers from the crowd. Tendler came back with a healthy sock to the midriff before the bell ended the session. Tendler's lip was split in this round and he was bleeding when he went to his corner.

Lew stepped out in front in the fifth, almost wrecking the Sailor with a clip on the chin. Tendler seemed surprised when his foe didn't take a high dive to the canvas, and he tried hard to get over a finishing wallop. However, Friedman had his own ideas about it and handed out as good as he received until the battling was fast and furious. Friedman rushed Tendler at the start of the sixth and put over a right to the head. Lew again played for the body, but Solly was tough and took everything that came his way. He fought back harder after getting stung by a fast one. In the seventh they stood toe to toe and pummeled each other until Friedman fell into a clinch. Tendler came back with a healthy wallop and yelled for a knockout. Friedman was the favorite with the crowd.

Friedman tried hard in the eighth, but Tendler did the same thing, and there wasn't a second's rest in the final session. Solly availed his right time and again in a desperate effort to connect with a haymaker, and Tendler depended on his right jab and body punches to keep him away. They fought harder than ever and were still going strong at the bell.

Friedman put up such a good battle with Lew that he was strong at the end that many of the spectators predicted that he would have scored a knockout had the fight been fifteen rounds. Whether this would have happened or not remains to be seen, but Solly deserves another bout with Tendler. He probably will do better next time.

ONE of the features of the wind-up was the refereeing of Herman Taylor, the boy promoter. Herman officiated in wonderful form and should be seen more often. He is too good a ring official to keep on the sidelines.

Harry Stone Takes It on the Hip

THERE was another bout on the program which was thoroughly enjoyed because it lasted less than two rounds. It was between George Chaney and Harry Stone, of Boston. Harry sitting in for Harry Kid Brown, who was injured and couldn't keep his date. Stone was a formidable looking person, with a lofty forehead, caused by the absence of hair. He wore a heavy beard and a fighting face. He was a very brawny man, and he was Chaney and trying to make himself appear very aggressive. He chased the Baltimore haymaker all over the ring and really gained some confidence. It was well that he gained something.

In the second round Harry tried more of the same, and while stepping around the ring collided with a fast left hook. He staggered to his feet, reeled reproachfully at Chaney, acting as if that terrific wallop had no place in the act. George was gentle after that, but when the crowd started to howl he put on more speed and tore after Mr. Stone.

The Boston brawler retreated backward, keeping his chin away from deadly left wallops, but wishing he was some place else. Suddenly Harry stopped and Chaney pressed him back. He let loose with his left and Stone saw it coming. Instead of waiting for it to land he took a dive first and was on the floor shuddering to think what would have happened had it landed. It was one of the most beautiful hops ever seen, but nobody cared. Annette Kellerman might have been jealous, but she wasn't present. They swept Harry out of the ring to make room for the next bout. Stone might not be a great fighter, but he is a better actor than many we have seen.

Danny Kramer and Charley Ledoux, bantamweight champion of Europe, appeared in the opener. Charley was seconded by Gus Wilson, who acted in a similar capacity to carpenter, and was just as lucky. Charley finished second, and Gus was at a loss what to do after the fourth round. The little Frenchman was dressed up in blue trunks with a broad white stripe, and looked like a college athlete. He also acted like one and covered more ground in eight rounds than a trans-Atlantic steamer going to France.

Ledoux ran rings around Kramer and his sparring was excellent. He got a lot of mileage out of his shoes and also a nice racing. Kramer won by several city blocks.

JOE TRIPLETT boxed better than ever before and was as much of a surprise as Friedman. He went after Dundee from the opening going until the final bell, slugging away and ignoring Johnny as if he were a preliminary boy. He paid no attention to Dundee's punches and landed a heavy left wallop. Two hits in the second round closed up the scratch Wop and he was lucky to get a draw.

Boots and Saddle

The Huron Handicap at Saratoga today at a mile and three-sixteenths brings together a field of thirty-three year-olds. Trister is required to carry top weight, but should prove best, with Bit of White and Sporting Blood the contenders.

Other horses well placed today are: First race—Dick Dealey, Olan O. Doughnut, second—Paul Jones, Dimondale, second—Don, third—Donna, second—Recount, Carpet Stacker, fifth—Sagecity, Pluff, Stancher, sixth, Runstar, My Heverie, My Play.

The race meeting at Windsor closed yesterday. The Montreal meeting begins tomorrow.

The Hagerstown, Md., Fair Grounds is a big place, where more than 100 horses are being prepared for the opening of the five-day race meeting on August 30. Several outsiders of horses have arrived from Canada within the last few days.

Thomas Clark, Baltimore financier and horseman, is out in a statement urging that the Government should take each race track with a view to increasing and developing the horsebreeding industry. He takes

"HANDS PERFECT," SAYS LEW TENDLER

Punched His Hardest Against Rugged Friedman, Explains Local Southpaw Star

SAILOR THOUGHT HE WON

By LOUIS H. JAFFE

"No, didn't hurt my hands at all," smiled Lew Tendler, local lightweight satellite, through a split lower lip in his dressing room immediately after his great battle with Sailor Friedman, of Chicago, at the Phil's Ball Park last night. "And, without any kidding, I took some healthy wallops at that guy. My hands now are in perfect shape."

"Friedman is a tougher fellow than I thought he was," continued the Philadelphia southpaw. "I thought I had him several times, but he certainly took it. When he didn't fall in the fifth round from that left flush on the chin I was amazed. It was about the hardest wallop that I ever landed. The sailor walked it off better than you could right back punching with both hands."

"And another thing that surprised me was the way he stood up under that back attack. He was given to me and I thought that Friedman did not relish punishment around the mid-section—that's all I think. I am convinced of that fact. I put everything I had behind my punches."

Tendler's Eye Cut

About ten seconds before the end of the contest, the heads of Tendler and Friedman came together and the former suffered a slight cut over his left eye. Lew had a slight cut over his eye. Besides the split lip and gash over his eye, Tendler's nose also was skinned and his cheeks some what swollen.

Speaking of a bout with Tendler, Friedman said today, "I hardly think the champion could have taken the body beating I gave Friedman. Yes, I do mean it is my opinion that Friedman could take it better, but I don't know, but of course this can be proved only in a match. I am hoping that I have not entirely lost a bout with Henry. I certainly want a chance to win that title."

The small crowd of Chicagoans, who came on to see their favorite lightweight challenger mingle with Tendler, believed the Philadelphia had won from the local man. "The great rallies in the later rounds," they said, "more than evened the advantage gained by Tendler in the early part of the contest."

"I think I won," said Friedman himself. "Tendler may be a good puncher and all that, but he didn't hurt me. He was coming just as strong when the fight ended as when it started. Wish it had of gone two or three more rounds. Tendler would have been unable to stand the pace."

Different Opinions

There were many celebrities at the ring-side. All agreed that it was one of the greatest lightweight matches seen in years. "Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien, Leon Rains, Sammy Goldman, Ernest Jambor, George Sawling, Herman Meyer, Yankee Schwartz, Horace Bagley, Slim Brennan, "Cony" Dove, Lew Diamond, Judge Imber, "Boo-Boo" Hoff, Charles Heber, Charles E. Peterson, Al Nelson, Mayor Bader, of Atlantic City; Bill Donovan, Angus MacDonald, Sam Levy, sports editor of the Milwaukee Journal, and several other well-known sports writers as to the winner. But each admitted the brilliancy of the battle.

Approximately 17,000 people, occupying seats on the field, boxes, stands and stands, pavilions and bleachers were in attendance, and besides being a well-handled crowd, it also was orderly. Three hundred and fifty guardians of the peace were on duty.

Just before the battle Roy Morrison presented Tendler with a silver loving cup on behalf of the Boosters' Association of Philadelphia, of which George Lead is president.

Scraps About Scappers

A boxing show for the benefit of the Sacred Heart carnival fund will be given at the Phil's ball park on Friday night. The show will be given by the Rev. Dr. J. J. Garrigan, pastor of the Sacred Heart church, and will feature a personal interest in the promotion of the fund.

PLAY STRAWBRIDGE NINE

North Philadelphia Stars Will Be Opponents on Saturday Afternoon

The North Philadelphia Stars will play the Strawbridge & Clothier team on Saturday afternoon on the latter's field at Sixty-third and Walnut streets. George Brandy, manager, has an all-star line-up for his team. He announces the following players: Mack Wheat, Mike Doolan, Johnny Castle, Bill O'Brien, Tom Manthey, John McCann, Harry Kane and Felix Wolfeld. His twirling staff will include Bob Williams, Kehof and McKee.

Brandy feels sure his team will reverse the result of the last meeting of these rivals when Strawbridge won out by scoring six runs in the first inning. Manager Truitt will have his strongest line-up in the field for the home club.
